What are ME/CFS & Long Covid?

Myalgic encephalomyelitis (ME), formerly known as chronic fatigue syndrome (CFS), is a chronic, complex, neuroimmune disease that profoundly limits the health and productivity of patients and is often triggered by an infection. Long Covid describes a collection of lingering symptoms following COVID-19.

They are thought to be related as they both can follow infection and exhibit many of the same prevalent symptoms: crippling fatigue, post-exertional malaise and cognitive dysfunction. There is no cure for either, nor are there any FDA-approved drugs or treatment so there is a dire need for more research into these disorders.

Core Programs

Solve M.E. takes a holistic approach to research and advocacy, catalyzing efforts through our various programs to make ME/CFS, Long Covid, and other “long haul” diseases better understood, diagnosable, and treatable. We are the largest U.S. peer-reviewed provider of private competitive research funding exclusively for ME/CFS, and the partner of choice for strategic, collaborative relationships with patients, researchers, government officials, and other disease organizations across the globe.

The Solve ME/CFS Initiative (Solve M.E.) is a non-profit organization that serves as a catalyst for critical research into diagnostics, treatments, and cures for myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome (ME/CFS), Long Covid and other infection-associated chronic conditions and illnesses (IACCI). Our work with the scientific, medical, and pharmaceutical communities, advocacy with government agencies, and alliances with patient groups around the world is laying the foundation for breakthroughs that can improve the lives of millions who suffer from various “long haul” diseases.
