Welcome to the new ACNM website. Some of our links may have been recently changed, so please use the search feature to browse for the information you're looking for.

Welcome To The New ACNM Website

Our team continues to make updates to ensure that members can easily access all of ACNM's resources both on the public website and via your Member Portal.

Please note that Google and other search engines are still in the process of updating their search results to reflect our new site's pages. This may mean that you reach error pages when searching for our site's resources on Google.

Unfortunately, this is something we can't speed up; it just takes time for search engines to reindex their results. In the meantime, the best way to find what you need is to use the new search feature on our website or reach out to us directly if you still can't find something. We're happy to help!

Thank you for your patience and support as we transition to this improved platform.

FAQs

How can I find pages or documents from the previous ACNM website?

Most of our updated pages and documents have been migrated over to our new website. Try using the site search to find what you’re looking for, or visit the libraries in the Professional Practice and Advocacy sections of the website to find documents. You may also be able to find a document you’re looking for by visiting your Member Portal as some documents are limited to members-only access.

Still can’t find a page or document you’re looking for?

For a limited time, our Legacy website is still available for access at legacy.midwife.org. If you are looking for a particular page or document, simply change the URL you are seeking by adjusting the opener to “legacy.midwife.org/_____” and you should be able to find any Legacy page or document.
