Women's Health

Women have unique health issues. And some of the health issues that affect both men and women can affect women differently.

Unique issues include pregnancy [<https://medlineplus.gov/pregnancy.html>] , menopause [<https://medlineplus.gov/menopause.html>] , and conditions of the female organs. Women can have a healthy pregnancy by getting early and regular prenatal care [<https://medlineplus.gov/prenatalcare.html>] . They should also get recommended breast cancer, cervical cancer [<https://medlineplus.gov/cervicalcancerscreening.html>] , and bone density [<https://medlineplus.gov/bonedensity.html>] screenings.

Women and men also have many of the same health problems. But these problems can affect women differently. For example:

- Women are more likely to die following a heart attack [<https://medlineplus.gov/heartattack.html>] than men
- Women are more likely to show signs of depression [<https://medlineplus.gov/depression.html>] and anxiety [<https://medlineplus.gov/anxiety.html>] than men
- The effects of sexually transmitted infections [<https://medlineplus.gov/sexuallytransmittedinfections.html>] (STIs) can be more serious in women
- Osteoarthritis [<https://medlineplus.gov/osteoarthritis.html>] affects more women than men
- Women are more likely to have urinary tract problems [<https://medlineplus.gov/urineandurination.html>]
